

Mrs. Angela Malyo

Mrs. Angela Malyo was born in Loloma Mission Hospital, Kabompo in North Western Province and attended High School at Mwinilunga Secondary School where she also served as Head Girl of the school.

Life has been full of Joys, Adventures, Challenges and Sorrows.

JOYS

-Was happily married to a loving husband and friend Mr. Malyo Mario for many years and blessed with wonderful children and grand children.

-The joy of a Career as a Registered Nurse.

She did not choose this career because of the great hours, pay and working conditions!

She still has the compassion of savoring the hope, the healing, the happiness it offers.

Through her Midwifery and General and Speciality Nursing back home in Zambia at Nkana Mine Hospital, UK and now in B.C. Mount Saint Joseph Hospital in Vancouver where she is currently working, she has been accorded a chance to celebrate life and death.

She loves what she does and feel an increased pride of belonging to a Universal Community of Caring..

ADVENTURES AND CHALLENGES

As family, relocated to UK in the year 2000 where Mr. Malyo pursued his Masters' Degree in Broadcasting and Administration at Nottingham Trent University, while Mrs. Malyo trained as a Critical Care Nurse and worked on a Cardiac Intensive Care Unit (CICU). This was a challenge to leave behind close family members and friends and an adventure at the same time to come and live abroad.

Then in August 2007, the family had to relocate again from UK to BC, Vancouver.

SORROWS

The family was bereaved and deprived of a dear husband, dad and grand dad on Oct. 2008 after Mr. Malyo lost his battle to Cancer and went to be with the Lord.

It has not always been easy but certainly rewarding to trust the Almighty God and belong to a caring Community.

The family has learnt to grow up and see the real world by trusting God and having brothers and sisters like you.

Mrs. Malyo is the past Trustee of the Canadian Association of Families and Friends in BC.
